Presenter

Michael Blugerman

Michael Blugerman is a clinical member and President of CAPCT and President of ATTACH: The Association for Training in Trauma and Attachment in Children.

ABSTRACT

Michael will present two cases of parental alienation—one with refusal of contact with a parent and the other with anxiety and avoidance of contact with a parent, through the lens of attachment theory and psychoanalytic thinking. These are cases in progress and Michael would appreciate the “thinking together” of the attendees concerning these “impossible” situations.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

1. Identify the dynamics present in these cases from an analytic perspective
2. Review of how analytic understanding can guide better interventions
3. Sharing of thinking about containing the elements of high conflict cases involving children’s contact or access with their parents
